Civic Tree

Read the following summary then follow the directions below to make a "tree" representing our three-branched government.

Our federal government has three parts. They are the Executive, Legislative and Judicial. All three parts of our federal government have their main headquarters in the city of Washington, D.C.

THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH

The President of the United States enforces the laws that the Legislative Branch (Congress) makes.

THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH

Congress makes our laws. Congress is divided into two parts. One part is called the Senate and the other part is called the House of Representatives. They meet together to discuss ideas and decide if these ideas (bills) should become laws.

THE JUDICIAL BRANCH

The Supreme Court are special judges who are supposed to interpret laws according to the Constitution. They are the highest court in our country.

Supplies

construction paper

scissors

paper bag

glue/hot glue or tape

green crayon

Directions

Open a lunch-sized paper bag and twist the bottom third to create the trunk of a tree. Then tear down from the top to the newly created trunk to make three sections. Twist the sections until they resemble branches. Cut out the leaves from the next page, color them, and glue them on the branches. Make sure you attach the leaves onto the correct branches, and be careful not mix them up!

What and Which?

What is the name of this building?

---

Which branch of the government meets here?

---

---

---

Once you have figured out the answers to these two questions, color the building.

The Cabinet

There are many famous and beautiful pieces of furniture in the White House, but when we speak of the President's Cabinet we are not referring to any object that President-elect Barak Obama will get to use over the next four years. The United States Cabinet is composed of the most senior appointed officers of the executive branch of our federal government. Cabinet officers are nominated by the President and then presented to the United States Senate for confirmation or rejection by a simple majority. Research Obama's appointments and fill them in in the blanks below.
